TOWNSMAN

Main Street Lot Added To Post Office Sites

From Andover to Andover

High school students from Andover, England, here for a three week visit to Andover, Mass., prepare to join in the classroom activities at the high school beginning today. The four students, staying with host families here, are from left, Timothy Jones, Rosemary Reid, Sue Moore and Jeff Geoffrey.

Two Sites Rejected

The U.S. Postal Service would like to put a new facility in Andover but apparently can't come up with a site acceptable to town officials.

The selectmen have informed the U.S. Postal Service that Dale street and Stevens street locations, under consideration for a new post office facility are unacceptable.

Instead, the selectmen suggest the postal authorities consider locating on the Andover Savings Bank property or possibly consider acquiring abutting property to the present post office building on Main street.

This results in another stand-off position and in a similar status to four sites presented to the post office department several months ago and all rejected.

The Andover Savings Bank site suggested by the selectmen has undergone some initial exploration between the owners and the postal officials.

But bank officials, who have plans to develop the property located diagonally across from the Town House, indicate that talks with postal officials have been merely exploratory in nature.

The selectmen, in informing postal authorities that Dale street and Stevens street locations were unacceptable, stated their feelings remained that any new postal facility, including mail handling operation, should be located within the central business district area.

As for suggestion of the Main street lot owned by the savings bank, Robert M. Henderson, bank president, said Wednesday that the post office had contacted the bank concerning the property.

Henderson said bank offered to meet with the postal officials for exploratory discussion but to date had not received any further information or contact.

The bank president said that no decision has been made by the trustees of the bank to sell the property and that the bank has been working on plans to develop the site on its own.

As to the acquisition of property abutting the post office, this would depend primarily on the availability of any land for negotiation.

The latest advisory by town officials to the postal authorities extends further the Democrats outnumber Republicans in the enrolled status for next Tuesday's primary election, with a light voter turnout anticipated.

For years Andover was a Republican stronghold, but in recent years Democrats have made substantial gains, to the point where they now outnumber the GOP registrants about 4,900 to 4,100. There will be 5,000 unenrolled, or independent voters eligible to cast ballots in the Tuesday primary.

Town Clerk Eldon R. Salter reports that the polls will be open in all six precincts on Tuesday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. for the usual punch-card voting.

At stake in the primary are party nomination for Congressional, state and county offices.

At the state level, Andover Representative Gerald Cohen is unopposed in his bid for renomination and re-election to the post he won two years ago. Of interest is the state senatorial race in precincts one, two, three and four where veteran incumbent Sen. William X. Wall of Lawrence is being challenged by Atty. James Shannon, also of Lawrence for the Democratic nomination.

Wall has been firmly entrenched on Beacon Hill for the past 20 years but is facing a major challenge by the younger Shannon in this year's contest

After School Bus Service To Begin

The Andover League of Women Voters is pleased to announce that, beginning in September, Trombly Motor Coach Service Inc. plans to provide after school bus service to transport Andover children from their schools to locations of major after school activities.

Helen Anderson, Andover League Transportation Chairman, reports that a League study completed last spring documented the need for this type of transportation and indicated that people would be willing to purchase tickets on a subscription basis. League members worked with Frank Trombly throughout the summer planning the service.

Ticket sales will begin Sept. 13. When enough tickets have been sold, buses will be at all public schools at dismissal time to pick up children. Routes will take them to the Andover - North Andover YMCA, Memorial Hall Library, and schools where Recreation Community Schools classes are meeting.

Buses for return service will leave the Y, East Junior High, and the Library at approximately 4:30 and follow routes to and from neighborhood elementary schools. Buses will then be at Andover High School at 5:30 to pick up participants in sports activities. Take home routes will follow main roads through town stopping only at safe places designated by Trombly. Routes will be published before service begins. Routes will remain flexible to respond to the demands created by changing activity schedules throughout the school year.

It is hoped that the first buses will run Sept. 27 to coincide with the starting date for YMCA classes. This will depend on ticket sales.

Only year passes entitling the holder to an unlimited number of rides will be sold. Once the service begins, buses will run on all full school days. Individual tickets will be sold for $20. The maximum cost for any family with three or more children is $50. ID type tickets with each child's name and grade will be issued. Tickets will not be transferable. In the event that not enough tickets are sold to finance the service, all money will be returned.

League members will be manning special tables to answer questions and sell tickets during the Recreation Community Schools registrations Sept. 13 and 14. They will also be at the "Y" on its first day of registration for the fall term.

Information sheets and application forms for tickets will be available at several locations in town beginning Sept. 13. Ticket application forms accompanied by the appropriate fee should be mailed directly to the bus company. Places where forms can be obtained include Andover - North Andover YMCA, Memorial Hall office at 36 Bartlet St.

Library, Thompson's, and the Recreation Community Schools

All questions about the Andover After School Bus Service will be answered by calling Trombly Motor Coach Service Inc.

Red Cross To Act On United Fund Cut

The Andover Chapter, American National Red Cross will hold a special meeting of the general membership on Wednesday, Sept. 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the Chapter House at Four Punchard Avenue, Andover.

Dr. Robert H. Reck, chairman of the Board of Directors, announced that the meeting must decide what actions the Chapter will take as a result of recent actions... "adverse to the Red Cross taken by the Merrimack Valley United Fund." Dr. Reck stated that, "The United Fund, in violation of long term commitments to the Chapter, has cut funding support by 50% making continued operation impossible; they have failed to support a request for national disaster relief funds; and, they are also forcing a consolidation of the Andover Chapter into the Greater Lawrence Chapter." Dr. Reck continued to say that "these actions will impair Red Cross services to the Town of Andover."

The Andover Chapter has appealed these decisions by United Fund but has been turned down. The General Membership at the Sept. 15 meeting will vote on what actions the Chapter should take in the present situation.

The meeting is one required by the chapter by-laws. Please contact the chapter if you plan to attend.

Recycling Schedules Available

The 1976/1977 Andover Recycling Schedule is available at town hall now - and will be mailed to homeowners with the tax bills in late September.

The Andover recycling program continues to be a successful method of collecting and putting into reuse newspapers, corrugated cardboard, tins, aluminum and glass. Tonnage of materials picked up has increased steadily; May 118 tons, June 136 tons, and July 142 tons.

Since the town of Andover receives from $10 to $20 a ton, and there are that many fewer tons to be collected and dumped at landfills, the benefits of this program are actually immeasurable. With an estimated 50% of households recycling the program is working.

ACT To Present Comedy

Discussing Land Ownership

Disputing ownership of land in rehearsal of a one-act play to be presented by the Andover Community Theater group are, from left, Mike Roy, Dorene Tronerud and Noel Forbes.

Andover Community Theatre presents a performance of Anton Chekhov's "The Marriage Proposal," an uproarious Russian comedy, to begin its first general meeting of the season.

This one-act play is to be held Wednesday, Sept. 15, at 7:30 p.m. at West Elementary auditorium. It is directed by Joan Roy and features performances by Dorene Tronerud, Mike Roy and Noel Forbes.

The agenda will also include a discourse on the fall production, "The Fifth Season" by its director, Ed Stoddard, as well as a job description for workers needed in all aspects of the performances.

Tryouts for this production will take place Sept. 16 and 17 from 7:30 - 8:30 and Sept. 19 from 2 - 3 p.m. at Ballardvale Community Center.

This free evening of light entertainment is open to the public and refreshments will be served.

Volunteers Needed At Museum

September is volunteer sign-up time at Boston's Museum of Science.

The start of another school year coincides with a need for eager, committed volunteers, says Gwen Ferrini, coordinator of the Service League, who oversees the training and placement of the more than 300 volunteers in almost every Museum department.

College students, retired persons, and other adults participate in Project Eye-Opener (tours for inner-city children); as assistants in the library, offices, and gift shop; as Visitor Guides; and as project researchers.

Project Eye-Opener takes place Monday mornings when the guides shepherd little groups of first and second grade children around the Museum, and introduce them to live animals. The purpose of the tours is to acquaint the children with a museum. An interest in children rather than a knowledge of science is desirable.

Visitor Guides answer questions about exhibits and try to enlarge visitors' understanding of science. They do not lead tours; instead they cover exhibit areas which they are prepared to discuss. A background in science -- either formal study or hobby-motivated -- and experience in meeting the public are required.

A knowledge of particular fields of science is needed for various research projects involving exhibits in preparation. The fields concerned are biology, medicine, vision, television, and energy.

Assistants in the Library, Gift Shop, and offices have varied assignments depending on the day-to-day needs of these departments. Some familiarity with libraries or businesses advantageous.

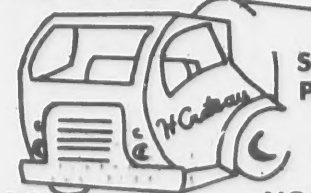

Prospective volunteers should call the Service League for an interview from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Training sessions start at the end of September.

AAUW Salad Buffet

The first meeting of the 1976-1977 season of the Andover-Georgetown Branch of the American Association of University Women will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 16 at Merrimack College, North Andover, in the women's dormitory.

This meeting will consist of the annual salad buffet supper and a look at activities for the year ahead - monthly programs, study groups, and special cultural events. Prospective members are invited to attend as AAUW guests. Those interested in joining may contact Mrs. Robert Gilman of Lowell or Mrs. Robert Reck of Andover. Chairmen of arrangements for this meeting are Mrs. Nancy MacVicar of Andover and Mrs. Rosemary Gatti of Lowell.

Since its foundation in 1882 AAUW members have worked for women's suffrage, inclusion of women in diplomatic service, election and appointment of women to public office, ending discrimination in inheritance laws, jury service, and property rights, and, more recently, ratification of ERA. Players To Present 'Harvey'

This fall the Quannapowitt Players bring to their 55 Hopkins Street Playhouse the endearing classic "Harvey" by Mary Ellen Chase.

"Harvey" is a delicately poised play requiring of its director a subtle blending of the dual elements of comedy of character and fantasy. Gladys Sturtevant of Wakefield, is well qualified to achieve this perfect balance. Gladys is a veteran professional actress with over 75 stage performances to her credit. After studying her craft at the Bishop

Lee School of Drama in Boston,

Gladys' career encompassed roles in movies, the legitimate theatre, summer stock and community theatre. As a member of Q.P.'s, Gladys has appeared in Laura, Country Girl and Arsenic and Old Lace. Mrs. Sturtevant's theatrical capabilities are not limited to acting. She is also a talented and experienced director. Her list of credits include, Last of the Red Hot Lovers, Barefoot in the Park and the Diary of Anne Frank.

This, the Quannapowitt Players third production of the classic confrontation between man and rabbit, is also the third time round for veteran actor James Lawthers, of Reading, in the role of Elwood P. Dowd. Appearing in the role of Dr. Chumley, a role originally created by the late Charles Sturtevant, Gladys' husband, in the Players first production of the conclusion of the evening. The Freshmen Mother's Tea will be held on September 26, the Cabaret on Oct. 27 and the Marist Women's Guild Christmas Bazaar on Nov. 14.

"Harvey" is James Watts of Reading.

Appearing in the cast are: Judge Gaffney, John Wood of Malden; Duane Wilson, Doug Welch of Salem; Veta Simmons, Gloria Poe of Wakefield; Dr. Sanderson, Thomas Whately of Stoneham; Nurse Kelley, Carol Alterio of Reading; Betty Chumley, Nancy Seavey of Reading; Mrs. Chauvenet, Jo Wolker of Wakefield; Myrtle Mae Simmons, Marilyn Wales of Melrose; Cab Driver, Neil Gustafson of New Hampshire.

Brother Alcide Ouellette, moderator and Mrs. Rita Ouellette, president, will preside.

Souvenir Plants Threaten Crops

Don't think too unkindly of a federal inspector who turns thumbs down on that exotic looking plant you've brought back from your overseas vacation.

It may look innocent enough, but it could be carrying a pest or disease that could endanger U. S. plant and animal life.

That's why federal quarantines are placed on bringing in certain foreign plants, meats, fruits, vegetables, and products made from animal or plant materials.

Pests and diseases brought into this country are serious and costly threats to U.S. crops, livestock and forests.

A sick parakeet, for example, brought Newcastle disease into California in 1971. To eradicate this highly contagious disease, federal and state officials had to slaughter more than 11 million infested and exposed poultry and pet birds.

More recently, larvae of the Mediterranean fruit fly were discovered in figs, pears, and peaches hidden in passenger luggage on a flight from Rome. The flies have invaded the U.S. four times, and each outbreak cost taxpayers more than $20 million for eradication. If left unchecked, the bug could cause damage of $20 million yearly to Florida citrus alone.

To guard against such entires, the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service employs some 700 inspectors at about 85 air, land, or sea ports in the U. S.

12 Patterson One-Hitter Concludes Ruth Season

THE TOWNSMAN, SEPTEMBER 9, 1976

BOB PATTERSON
... fires one-hit shutout

By Rick Harrison

The 1976 Andover Babe Ruth baseball team recently concluded its season by playing a three-game inter-town series against the Methuen Club.

The evenly-matched rivals battled to a 1-1-1 standoff in the campaign closing series.

The results left Andover with a final 22-8-1 overall record, including 16-5 in the Greater Lawrence League for a second place finish.

The opening Andover-Methuen game saw the teams battle to a 3-3 deadlock, before darkness called a halt to proceedings after eight innings at the Playstead Field.

The second game was captured by Methuen, 6-1, as a combination of errors and effective pitching by winner Mark Wante spelled defeat for Andover at the Pelham Street field in Methuen.

Andover came back to win the finale, 1-0, as 13-year-old right-hander Bob Patterson fired a masterful one-hit shutout in his mound debut.

3-3 Tie

Steve Serley hurled the complete eight inning distance for Andover in the opener. He allowed just four singles and one earned run, striking out three and walking six.

Methuen countered with lefty Jim Cassidy, Jay Dzioba and Frank Slater, who checked Andover on two hits.

The locals grabbed a 3-0 advantage in the first inning. Dave Farrell walked, Chuck Souter slammed a double to centerfield, and Serley worked a free pass to load the bases.

Dan Grams' fielder's choice grounder rescued Farrell, and all runners were safe. Bob Patterson and Bill Stahley then lofted sacrifice flies to centerfield.

That marked the final Andover threat, however, as Bill Stahley's leadoff single in the fourth was the only other hit.

The locals did have a runner on in every inning except the third,

Indian Ridge Tops Willows

The Indian Ridge Tennis team won its last match of the season downing Willows Racquet Club, 10-9. The win boosted the Indian Ridge record to six wins and two losses for the summer.

but never advanced anyone beyond second base.

Methuen got back in the game with a pair of unearned runs in the third. A walk, a fielder's choice and Joe Grelle's single put men at second and third with two outs. Mark Wante followed with an infield grounder, and the ball was thrown high to first enabling two runners to score.

In the sixth Methuen tied it after two were out. Dave Lowell walked, stole second and third base, and scored on a wild pitch.

Defensively for Andover, catcher Brian Kelly gunned down two runners trying to steal, second baseman Pete Feeney initiated a nice doubleplay, and third baseman Dan Grams handled four chances flawlessly.

Methuen, 6-1

Dave Farrell went the route on the mound for Andover, but was victimized by inconsistent defensive play.

Farrell struck out nine and walked seven. He permitted seven singles, four of them coming consecutively in the sixth inning.

Andover received singles from Bob Patterson, Bill Stahley, Paul Kelly, Brian Kelly, Pete Feeney and Farrell.

However, the lone Andover run came in the fourth when Chuck Souter walked and eventually scored on Paul Kelly's two-out single.

Methuen netted one run in the first when Dave Lowell was hit by a pitch, and later came across on Mark Wante's sacrifice fly. Joe Grelle stroked a two-run single in the third, while Frank Slater lashed an RBI single in the fourth and Jim Cassidy had a run-scoring hit in the sixth.

Andover, 1-0

Bob Patterson made an impressive Babe Ruth debut on the mound, blanking Methuen on a single hit, fanning two and walking three.

Dave Lowell's one-out single to centerfield in the first inning was the lone hit off Patterson, and only two runners reached second base.

To cap it off, Patterson won his own game with an RBI double in the sixth to chase home the only run. Dave Birnbach led that frame with a walk, stole second, and scored easily when Patterson hammered a long two-bagger over the leftfielder's head.

Losing pitcher Joe Grelle surrendered five hits, walked four and whiffed two.

Dan Grams went 2-for-3, while Bob Heidt laced a single, and Birnbach laid down a perfect bunt single and reached base three straight times.

The lone Methuen threat occurred in the fifth with two down. Grelle was nicked by a pitch, and he advanced to third on a passed ball and error. He then tried to steal home but was caught easily.

Defensively Dan Grams handled five chances perfectly, Patterson had four assists and ranged far into foul territory for a fine catch of a foul pop, and second baseman Pete Feeney made three plays.

Tryouts

The Andover Ruth team will hold its annual Fall tryouts this

Saturday and Sunday at the Playstead Field behind East Junior High. Both sessions will run from 1-3 p.m. approximately, and all Andover youngsters ages 13 to 15 are invited to attend.

Babe Ruth Tryouts Planned

The Andover Babe Ruth baseball team will hold its annual Fall tryouts this Saturday, Sept. 11 and Sunday, Sept. 12 from 1-3 p.m. both days at the Playstead Field behind East Junior High.

Another set of tryouts will be held next Spring, after which the 1977 club will be chosen, and these Fall workouts are basically an introduction to the Ruth set-up for interested players.

All Andover boys between the ages of 13 and 15 are eligible to try out, as long as they will not reach their 16th birthday before August 1, 1977.

The Andover team recently completed another successful season in the Greater Lawrence League, finishing in a three-way tie for second place and just one game out of first with a 16-5 record.

The overall ledger for the club was 22-8-1, including a two-game split during its annual trip to Montreal, Canada.

Over the past three summers Andover has compiled a 65-24-2 record.

There are also 13 and 14-15 year old All-Star teams selected from the league each year, and this past season Andover had six players on both squads. The 13s advanced to the State Tournament final before bowing, while the 14-15 team won the State crown and continued on to the New England Tournament before being ousted.

A special invitation is extended to all Little League graduates, and as always all 15 positions on the team are open.

Boys should bring a glove to the tryouts, and should wear cleats if they have them. It is also suggested that players bring their own bat if they have a personal favorite.

Further information about the team and the tryouts may be obtained by calling Manager Rick Harrison (475-2007).

Mounties Return To Topsfield

Over its long and illustrious history, Topsfield Fair has played host to stars and superstars of the entertainment world but no single attraction has had the diverse emotional appeal of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who first appeared here six years ago.

The Mounties will return Oct. 7-11 to highlight the 152nd renewal of America's oldest continuous county fair. And while they will get stiff competition from such established crowd-pleasers as Bobby Burgess and Cissy King of the Lawrence Welk TV show, who will precede them when the Fair opens on Oct. 2, officials believe the remarkable equestrians from north of the border will break every local attendance record.

Paul Corson, general manager of the sponsoring Essex Agricultural Society, recalls that the Mounties' 1970 Topsfield debut was confined to two days in midweek, normally "slow" days compared to weekends and holidays. Yet transplanted USA Canadians, and even resident Canadians from Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, flocked here by the thousands to give the Fair its biggest Thursday and Friday crowds ever.

So, with a five-day engagement this time around, which will include a Saturday, Sunday and holiday (Columbus Day), Oct. 11, Fair officialdom is preparing for daily throngs of 30,000 to 40,000.

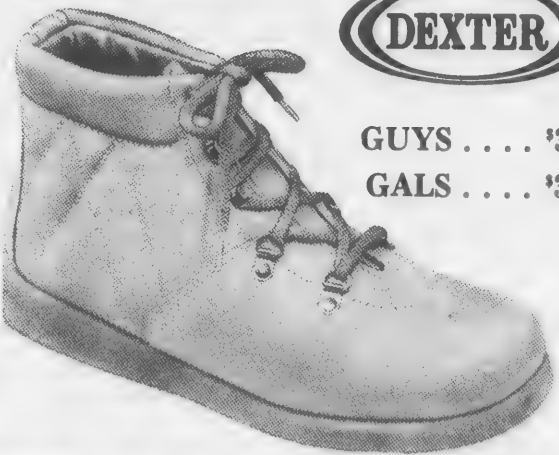

Billed as "Canada's Salute to the American Bicentennial", the 36 horses and 42 men of the Mounties' team will present, three times daily, their stirring cavalry charge and amazing precision drill, all part of what they call their "Musical Ride."

Murgia

Robert Murgia of Andover, Massachusetts state trooper, was forced to retire at the age of 50 and lost his battle for reinstatement by a decision of the United States Supreme Court. He is determined he will continue to lead a very active life. More even though he ran up a huge bill for legal services, he thinks the battle was worthwhile.

The aftermath of Mr. Murgia's story, which gained national attention, is told in the September issue of Dynasty, a bimonthly magazine published for the 280 members of Action for Independent Maturity (AIM), an affiliate of the American Association of Retired Persons open to persons between the ages of 50 and 64.

"I'll tell you one thing," Murgia told Elliot Carlson, who wrote the article, "I'm not going to become an old man because the Supreme Court is against me."

Mr. Murgia, who now heads a guard force at Digital's factory in Westminister, demonstrates his physical fitness by jumping his horse Gentleman Jim over fences and brick hurdles. Ironically, he had passed a thorough physical examination just months before his 50th birthday in 1972, when he was "invaluably retired."

Mr. Murgia believes his case will eventually prevail, though he will not benefit financially.

Murgia Feels Case Worthwhile

Robert Murgia of Andover, the Massachusetts state trooper who was forced to retire at the age of 50 and lost his battle for reinstatement by a decision of the United States Supreme Court, is determined he will continue to lead a very active life. Moreover, even though he ran up a huge bill for legal services, he thinks the battle was worthwhile.

The aftermath of Mr. Murgia's story, which gained national attention, is told in the September issue of Dynamic Maturity, a bimonthly magazine published for the 280,000 members of Action for Independent Maturity (AIM), an affiliate of the American Association of Retired Persons open to persons between the ages of 50 and 65.

"I'll tell you one thing," Mr. Murgia told Elliot Carlson, who wrote the article, "I'm not going to become an old man just because the Supreme Court ruled against me."

Mr. Murgia, who now heads a guard force at Digital's factory in Westminster, demonstrates his physical fitness by jumping his horse Gentleman Jim over fences and brick hurdles. And, ironically, he had passed a tough physical examination just three months before his 50th birthday in 1972, when he was "involuntarily retired."

Mr. Murgia believes his cause will eventually prevail, even though he will not benefit personally.

"I think we enlightened a lot of people," he says. "I think there will be other challenges." And he believes the publicity his case created will help tip the scales against unfair mandatory retirement practices.

The U. S. Supreme Court, in a seven-to-one decision, did not dispute Mr. Murgia's physical stamina or find anything questionable in his excellent 24-year service on the state police force. The seven Justices ruled on the narrow ground that one's physical fitness "presumptively" diminishes with age and that the state, desiring to maintain a top notch police force, did not act irrationally or unconstitutionally in setting 50 as a mandatory retirement age. The Justices also stated that Mr. Murgia had not been singled out in any discriminatory way.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, who cast the dissenting vote, conceded that the State of Massachusetts has a legitimate right to insist on physical fitness for its policemen. But arbitrary retirement at 50 is "the height of irrationality," he wrote, because it "tells able-bodied police officers, ready and willing to work, that they no longer have the right to earn a living in their chosen profession merely because they are 50 years old."

The American Association of Retired Persons, the National Retired Teachers Association, and the National Senior Citizens Law Center agreed with Justice Marshall's views in briefs filed as friends of the court in support of Mr. Murgia's position.

Mr. Murgia says he harbors no bitterness, but he does miss the excitement and prestige he enjoyed as the highest ranking officer in Massachusetts's state police force.

He told the Dynamic Maturity writer that he now has one overriding goal: He's going to remain active for many years to prove that the Supreme Court Justices were wrong in their decision.

WILLIAM T. NOVELLINE,

HERE WE GO AGAIN!

In 1962, 1968, and again in 1972, the voters of Massachusetts OVERWHELMINGLY voted against referenda questions to permit the legislature to impose a personal graduated income tax. Apparently the big-spend politicians on Beacon Hill and their liberal allies in Americans for Democratic Action, Fair Share, and the Mass. Teachers Association did not get the message. Once again they have placed this question on our November ballot.

One new twist this year is that the House Taxation Committee has passed a contingency rate structure which will replace the present 5% flat rate. We have reproduced the bill's rate structure below for your information. You will also find several tables comparing the effect of the proposed tax with the present system on various income levels over a ten-year period. Each table assumes an 8% annual increase in personal income to keep pace with inflation.

Oh, yes! There is another new twist this year. Corporate contributions, so vital to past anti-grad tax campaigns are no longer permitted. We must depend on individual taxpayers. It is our desire to repeat the ad you are reading in newspapers all over Massachusetts. To do so, we need your support to spread the word. Look at the tables below. When you recover, please send us your maximum contribution.

Grad Tax Rate Structure Approved by House Taxation Committee

If Taxable Income Is Over	But Not Over	Tax Is	Of Amount Over

* This family would pay nearly $5,500.00 more under the proposed tax than under the present system.

10	2,998.51	5,251.72
Total	$21,729.85	$34,767.23

* This family would pay over $13,000.00 more under the proposed tax than they would with our present system.

In addition to the devastating effect on individual taxpayers, the proposed graduated income tax will cripple business and industry by:

- A. Drying up funds used for expansion and growth.
- B. Inhibiting talent searches.
- C. Reducing purchasing power of consumers.
- D. Driving productive citizens away from Massachusetts.

Indeed, several major firms have already announced their intention to leave Massachusetts if this program passes.

Citizens for Limited Taxation will work for its defeat. But we need your help now! Please fill out the coupon today.

Howell Stillman Honored By Friends

Last Thursday, many friends of Howell M. Stillman, dropped in at his home on Juniper Road to wish him well as he departs to reside with his daughter, Mrs. Fred List in Shrewsbury, N. J.

Mr. Stillman was president of the Bay State Merchants National Bank for many years prior to his retirement and served on the Andover Finance Committee for many years. He was also one of the founders of the Andover Artists Guild.

If economic thinking pervades and persists in all aspects of society, the simple non-economic values of beauty, health and cleanliness can survive only if they prove to be economic, Massachusetts Audubon points out.

Journey Of Life Church School Theme

Life is like a journey - a journey through a maze. Each person is like a hero or heroine set forth on a journey to seek the meaning of life. There are decisions in each path, and though sometimes people make poor decisions, they try to choose wisely. Sometimes, the encounter difficulties, pain and hard work. They can choose to escape them or to overcome them. Often the journeys overlap with others and people have to work together.

Using the overall theme for the year of journeying through a maze, the church school of the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Andover opens on Sept. 12. There are classes for children aged 3 months through 9th grade. Church school meets at 10:30 each Sunday morning, with an additional evening program for Junior High students.

The Unitarian-Universalist church school is a place where children come to learn by doing things: examining nature, acting out stories, role-playing life decisions, exploring all dimensions of their being, asking questions, seeking answers, using paint, clay, puppetry and their whole bodies. In the spring, the whole church school will produce a play, Journey Through a Maze, written by Alorie Parkhill of Sudbury.

Questions concerning the church school can be answered by the director, Jean Rickard of North Reading, or the minister of the church, Dr. Randolph Becker.

The Unitarian-Universalist church school seeks to provide children with a series of experiences that will help them to:

Learn to know themselves, and develop a sense of self-worth, leading towards happy and loving relationships with others; Develop a joyous response to the wonder, order, beauty and mystery of life and its evolution; Embrace from our religious heritage those ideas and values which the children find to have individual relevance, meaning and value; Understand and develop a sense of belonging to, our religious community; Build the basis for a deeply-felt, sustaining and living religious philosophy; and Learn to apply this developing philosophy to themselves and others, compassionately and creatively.

An opening day brunch is planned for 10 a.m. on Sept. 12, to greet new and old students and their parents.

The Unitarian-Universalist Church of Andover is located at 244 Lowell St., Andover. It welcomes people of all religious backgrounds.

Aristotle believed minerals, animals and plants should be exploited by man; his thought was authoritative for centuries in Europe and Arabian countries, helping to justify the use or misuse of nature, according to Massachusetts Audubon. Theophrastus, his pupil, was the only ancient Greek to understand ecology as we do.

called Home Energy Improvement Techniques this fall. This course, taught by James Whyte, is geared for those who wish to learn about do-it-yourself home improvements to save energy and money.

It will be offered Thursday nights, from 8-10 p.m., for 5 weeks. While there is no charge for the course, students should register as class size is limited (this is part of the fall program; call the department for registration information).

The course will provide homeowners with enough information to make decisions about their own homes and the skills to make improvements. The ten-hour course is divided into three parts. Chapter One is a short summary of how heat and energy work and how they affect the home. Chapter Two is "Project Retro-Tech." This section asks homeowners to note specific features of their homes, then evaluate energy efficiency improvements with the aid of the teacher. Chapter Three, the "how-to" section, explains housing in Massachusetts, what to look for in making home improvements and techniques.

The Recreation/Community Schools Department is one of 87 departments in the Commonwealth offering the program, part of a major follow up to the Project Conserve questionnaire campaign instituted last spring by the Massachusetts Energy Policy Office.

In announcing the course, Governor Michael S. Dukakis said, "We've received superb cooperation from school departments statewide. Massachusetts homeowners are very conscious of heating costs, and this is an opportunity to become aware of conservation steps to take, the materials available, and how to do it."

Offered Tuesday nights through November 30, the program is coordinated by the College of Music and features Alfred Burke, founder and artistic director of the Lowell Opera Company, as guest lecturer.

Music critic for the Lowell Sun, Mr. Burke studied voice at the New England Conservatory with Gladys Miller, coached opera roles with Alfredo Anzal and was also a student of Boris Goldovsky. In addition with his 30 year affiliation with the Sun, Mr. Burke has found time to perform in choruses and as a soloist; and has lectured frequently on opera for many educational and civic organizations.

His syllabus for the special, non-credit course will include operas from Mozart to Wagner, featuring famous works as Puccini's "La Boheme" and Verdi's "Rigoletto". "La Boheme" will be performed at the new Durgin Hall of the University's College of Music under the direction of world famous Sarah Caldwell of Opera New England. The production is part of a 1976 - 1977 Opera New England residency at the University. "Rigoletto" will be performed by the Lowell Opera Company on May 7, 1977 at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium, directed by Mr. Burke.

Tickets for both major and affiliated productions during the season at Lowell will be reserved for students in Mr. Burke's course, at the regular admission prices.

"Scientists are convinced air pollution is a very contributing factor to the three major types of disease that cause sickness and death in our country: heart disease, lung disease, and cancer," reports the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Americans pay about $1 billion a year for air pollution in terms of damage to property, materials, and health.

Primary standards for air quality, which protect human health, and secondary standards, which protect human welfare, are set by the EPA for six pollutants: sulfur oxides, hydrocarbons, nitrogen oxides, photochemical oxidants, carbon monoxide, and particulate matter.

What are the health effects of these six air pollutants?

Sulfur oxides are acrid, corrosive, poisonous gases produced mainly by fossil-fuel burning at electric power plants and industrial plants. Coal burning produces about 60 percent of sulfur oxide emissions. Sulfur dioxide pollution aggravates lung disease and asthma.

Joint Effort Needed to Clean Air

By Polly Bradley

"Scientists are convinced that air pollution is a very real contributing factor to the three major types of disease that cause sickness and death in our society: heart disease, lung disease, and cancer," reports the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Americans pay about $20 billion a year for air pollution in terms of damage to health, property, materials, and vegetation.

Primary standards for air quality, which protect human health, and secondary standards, which protect human welfare by lowering damage to plants, animals, and property, have been set by the EPA for six major pollutants: sulfur oxides, hydrocarbons, nitrogen oxides, photochemical oxidants, carbon monoxide, and particulates.

What are the health effects of these six air pollutants?

Sulfur oxides are acrid, corrosive, poisonous gases produced mainly by fossil-fuel burning electric power plants and industrial plants. Coal burning produces about 60 percent of all sulfur oxide emissions. Sulfur oxide pollution aggravates lung and heart disease and asthma.

Hydrocarbons are produced by motor vehicles, refineries, petroleum processing and storage facilities, and the use of organic solvents in dry cleaning, painting, etc. Hydrocarbons affect human beings indirectly by contributing to photochemical oxidants, which cause irritation of the eyes and respiratory system.

Nitrogen oxides are produced by high-temperature fuel combustion in furnaces and transportation vehicles, and by chemical plants. Occupational exposure to nitrogen oxides has had severe health effects, and tests on laboratory animals indicate a lower resistance to influenza and an effect on lung tissue. Nitrogen oxides also react with hydrocarbons to form photochemical smog.

Photochemical oxidants are produced when automobile exhaust, hydrocarbons, and nitrogen oxides are exposed to sunlight, producing ozone, peroxyacyl nitrate, formaldehyde, acrolein.

Photochemical oxidants are produced when automobile exhaust, hydrocarbons, and nitrogen oxides are exposed to sunlight, producing ozone, peroxyacyl nitrate, formaldehyde, acrolein, nitrogen peroxide, and organic peroxides. Health effects include worsening of asthma, respiratory irritation, eye irritation, lung problems, and impaired athletic performance.

Carbon monoxide, produced mostly by automobiles and other vehicles, interferes with the blood's ability to carry a normal supply of oxygen. It also weakens heart function. Carbon monoxide is particularly dangerous for people with heart problems, but also affects those with lung disease, anemia, and cerebral-vascular disease. It also affects mental function, visual perception, and alertness.

Particulates include all particles in the air, including soot, mists, and sprays, caused by a wide variety of factors. Major health effects are on the respiratory system, and some chemicals can cause cancer when inhaled.

How do we stand on cleaning up these six pollutants?

Russell E. Train, EPA Administrator, says, "The nation has made significant progress in cleaning up the air, but there is still a long way to go. If citizens, industries, and officials at all levels of government work hard together, we can and will attain the health protection goals established in the Clean Air Act. I am confident that we have both the will and the means to do so.

Built during the Victorian development of Central Street, #66 features detailed trim, different treatment of dormer roofs. Four-pane windows are "very Victorian."

Central Street: A 250-Year Walk

Back in 1810, Timothy Dwight wrote of a "considerable village in South Andover, near the eastern bank of this river (Shawsheen), built chiefly on a single street, upwards of a mile in length and running from north to south. The houses are generally decent and a few of them handsome."

There's little doubt that Dwight was referring to Central Street, already by then a well-established residential area.

In fact, it was "main street" until the Essex Turnpike (today's Main Street) was built, and it subsequently served as the main route to the 19th century industrial in Ballardvale.

Some of the bustle may be gone, but the "handsome" houses still stand, and a walk along the mile-plus offers a unique view of the history of Andover from its earliest settlement to the present.

So the architectural treasures may be preserved, the Andover Historic District Study Commission has proposed that Central Street and parts of Essex, Brook, Torr and Andover Streets, be designated as an official historic district. The town's voters will decide that matter at the October Town Meeting.

Meanwhile, Donald Hayes, Jr., president of the Andover Historical Society, recently began a one-way walk at the "top" of the proposed district, in front of the First Baptist Church at the corner of Central and Essex Streets. He proceeded down Essex, up Brook, then out Central through the Horn Bridge, and up Andover Street to Argilla Road.

The walk is about a mile and a half and can be done in an hour and a half at a leisurely pace, taking time to note the special features of every style of architecture that has ever been popular in Andover.

The Baptist Church is one of Hayes' favorite structures, he claims, particularly because of its columns. It was built in 1832 in the Greek Revival style and during the late 1800's, T. A. Holt operated a store in the basement where the Sunday School wing is now.

Also Greek Revival is the apartment building at 10 Essex Street, which was one as store as well as a meeting hall for the GAR and the Hibernian Society. Hayes calls that structure, and the brick law offices next door at 12 Essex, good examples of the "reuse" of old buildings.

Number 12 is somewhat deceiving, Hayes says, because its mansard roof would indicate it was built about 1880. The building is actually much older, of the Federal Period of the late 18th or early 19th Century, Hayes says, and the mansard roof was a later addition.

The Chickering House at 28 Essex was the work of Jacob Chickering, a builder who paid great attention to detail. Hayes notes the wood trim over the windows, which is repeated in another Chickering-built house across at 29 Essex (only the south side of the street is actually included in the proposed district).

Chickering also built the Gothic cottage at 34 Essex with its sharp peaks, little window in the attic front and gingerbread trim under the eaves. The cottage also boasts old white fences, of different styles, along its front and back property lines.

This whole area of Essex and Brook Streets was a pleasant residential section built about 1820 to 1850 in response to growing industries, Hayes says. The

The mansard roof on the brick law offices at 12 Essex Street was probably a later addition to a Federal style structure.

Some Important Business Next Tuesday

Primary elections often do not command the attention they deserve, for varying reasons.

The necessity to declare oneself on primary day, is often given as the principal reason for shirking electoral duty, but that excuse is no longer valid. Declaring oneself by obtaining either a Republican or Democratic ballot at the polls can be altered almost immediately by signing a card indicating the preference to remain as an independent.

We feel that the primary election this year is particularly important as an effort to take some action relative to an age-old problem -- county government.

We have mentioned in these columns on many occasions, our displeasure with the county system of operation. It is an archaic and outdated system, which vividly portrays political patronage at its best, and business like governmental process at its worst.

It is difficult to get rid of the system, since the majority of the state legislature adheres to the system and keeps supporting annually.

Andover has been in the forefront of attempts to make county government more responsible to the people. A county advisory committee has had strong Andover support in efforts to make Essex County government a more efficient and economical operation.

Andover voters on Tuesday will have the opportunity to assist in the improvement of county operations.

Recognizing that the form of government will remain with us for a while longer, we feel that placing some responsible and concerned persons on the county commission is imperative.

For that reason we endorse the candidacies of John McKean of Beverly and Joseph Guthrie of North Andover as Democratic nominees for the two terms on the county commission.

McKean has impressed us as being a young, vigorous and responsible man, interested in making county government work efficiently.

A graduate of Harvard where he received a B. A. degree in government and the recipient of a law degree from Suffolk University, McKean is ably qualified to bring a fresh approach to the workings of county government.

Guthrie, currently chairman of the board of selectmen and a former member of the school committee in that community, should be, by experience acutely aware of the problems facing local communities and the need to avoid added costs of county government on local property taxpayers.

With a $2 increase in this year's Andover tax rate, attributable in no small part to the costs of county operations, we suggest that Andover Democrat and un-enrolled voters endorse the candidacies of these two men as an effort toward more responsible leadership.

Clerk of Courts

While on the subject of the county, another race which captures our attention in Tuesday's primary is that of the Clerk of Courts.

Incumbent Philip Hennessey is retiring and six men of varying backgrounds are seeking the six-year term.

In our opinion, the most qualified to assume these important duties is Thomas F. Dunn of North Andover.

Dunn an official court reporter, or stenographer, for the past 25 years displays by profession the best qualifications for this important post.

Of his 25 years in the field of keeping records of court proceedings, Dunn has been assigned to Essex County for 17.

We feel that Dunn is best fitted by qualification and service to the Essex County Courts to move into the Clerk of Courts office.

Summer Sails Into The Sunset

The sails are lowered and another summer of skimming over the waves comes to an end as sailors drift to shore toward the late summer setting sun.

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Tax Revolt: 1776 and 1976

by Jack Anderson with Joe Spear

WASHINGTON -- It was a tax revolt that led to the birth of our nation 200 years ago. And in this our Bicentennial year, millions of Americans are ready to revolt again over taxes.

They are tired of taxes that keep going up while government services go down. Taxation at all levels has jumped 65 per cent in the past six years.

They are tired of tax laws that have become too complex to understand. It takes 6,000 pages of fine print to list all the rules and regulations. Two out of every five taxpayers require professional help to figure out what they owe. So on top of the tax burden, they have to pay accountants' and attorneys' fees.

Americans are also tired of unfair taxes. The rich usually pay less than their fair share. At least 3,000 affluent Americans, with annual incomes over $50,000, have been paying no federal income taxes at all.

The people are tired of paying the taxes of big corporations. Most oil companies, for example, pay only a fraction of the corporate tax rate. A dozen major corporations have been paying absolutely no corporate tax. Yet they have been ringing up substantial earnings. Other taxpayers, of course, must make up the taxes that these corporations don't pay.

This year, Congress promised to reform the tax laws. First the House, and then the Senate ground out page after page of tax changes. Between them, they have now produced more than 2,200 pages.

But as fast as one tax benefit was taken away from the rich, two new benefits were added. The legislation came to be known as the Christmas Tree bill. It got its name from the goodies that the lobbyists hung on its branches as it progressed toward a final vote.

It started through the legislative mill innocently enough as a tax reform measure. But by the time it cleared the Senate floor, it was loaded down with amendments.

In the dark ages, serfs labored nine months for their own needs. During the remaining three months of each year, they produced profits for their masters. Today, the average American works more than four months of each year to earn enough to pay his taxes.

And each year, the tax bite deepens, the anti-government mood sharpens and tax resistance grows. Just like 200 years ago.

ARAB WAR? Intelligence reports warn that war may erupt in the Middle East in a matter of weeks. Fighting is not expected between the Arabs and Israelis. This time, it's Egypt and Libya that are preparing to go to war.

The animosity between Egypt's Anwar Sadat and Libya's Muammar Qaddafi has reached the inflammation point. The two Arab leaders distrust and despise one another.

Qaddafi is a madcap ruler who has been using his oil boodle to underwrite terrorists. Intelligence sources charge that Libyan diplomats have used their diplomatic pouches to smuggle weapons to terrorists.

Qaddafi is believed to be behind recent terrorist attacks upon Egypt. Trains have been attacked, buildings have been bombed. An attempt was made to hijack an Egyptian plane.

Sadat has responded, according to intelligence reports, by bolstering his military forces on the Libyan border. The Libyans also are preparing their armed forces for war.

The showdown could come, the intelligence reports predict, by October. The situation, in the words of one analyst, is "getting out of hand."

Intelligence sources predict that, if war comes, the Egyptians probably will be victorious. They are battle-tested, with experience in both aerial and tank warfare.

BOUNTIFUL BUREAUCRATS: President Ford has complained that the federal government harasses honest businessmen. He has charged that more than 100,000 federal bureaucrats are engaged in regulation.

The Congressional Budget Office has double-checked the President's figures. The budget office found only 84,000 bureaucrats regulating business. That's still too many. There's too much red tape, too many forms to fill out.

But the 84,000 bureaucrats regulate thousands of industries. And most of the regulators are policing health, safety and consumer violations.

But the government agency with the most regulators is the Agriculture Department. So it's the farmers, not the businessmen, who put up with the most regulation.

MULTI-MILLION-DOLLAR MISTAKES: The Social Security Administration's computer systems are producing incredible monetary mistakes. A document, intended for official eyes only, tells of millions of dollars worth of errors.

"In a single day in August, 1975, faulty program instructions caused the computers to issue $10 million in overpayments to 1,500 people," the document reveals.

Employee incompetence often combines with computer malfunctions to create the mistakes. "Overall quality or competence, dedication or motivation and sufficiency of the working staff are below appropriate levels," the report declares.

Meanwhile, Congress has started an unannounced investigation of the SSA mishaps. The investigation, we have learned, is focusing on the employee problems and inadequate computer systems.

Record Enrollment At Ag-Tech

Director Raymond F. Potter has announced a record enrollment in all programs at the Essex Agricultural and Technical Institute. Over 1,100 students will be reporting to school next week.

High school students will begin on Sept. 8, and those in the college and post-secondary schools on Sept. 7.

It is anticipated that over 2,500 county residents will be enrolled and participating in day and evening adult education courses and special programs in the practical arts and agricultural divisions, and the Essex County Cooperative Extension Service.

Open House Cancelled

The open house scheduled for Sept. 9 at The Magic Years Country Day school has been cancelled due to a completely full enrollment.

The Magic Years will be beginning its third year when school opens on Sept. 13. The school is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. in order to meet the various schedules of many working parents. The Nursery Program runs from 8:30 a.m. through 11:30 a.m. There is transportation provided from local kindergartens to a relaxing program designed to meet the needs of children who have been in a group situation in the morning. At this time, there are two spaces left in this program.

The Magic Years is staffed by four teachers in the morning and three in the afternoon which enables the teacher-child ratio to be 6-1.

Safe Walk Better

If you have a child just entering school for the first time, or have one enrolled in primary grade, consider the vice from the Automobile Insurance Company of Merrimack Valley; don't leave your youngster to or from school.

The reason, says the affiliated club, is that each parent adds to traffic congestion around school buildings presenting an unnecessary hazard to small students. Child safety applies especially in inclement weather.

Drivers maneuvering off young passengers create confusing traffic patterns in areas, sometimes contriving serious accidents. Children haphazardly across lanes to enter and leave the car are exposed to danger.

Instead of driving children to school, the auto club recommends that parents teach them safe walking and on rainy days, provide with well-fitting, light raincoats and rain hats.

Plan to walk with children first few days of school and then afterward. Get plenty of time, so there's no hurry or run. This way, children learn to walk safely.

If there's a school bus available, walk with children to the bus for a few days and then at the stop where they arrive home.

Before long, youngsters probably want to walk alone or the bus "alone" --

Safe Walking Advice Better For Youngsters

If you have a child just entering school for the first time this Fall or have one enrolled in a primary grade, consider this advice from the Automobile Club of Merrimack Valley: don't drive your youngster to or from school.

The reason, says the AAA-affiliated club, is that each driving parent adds to traffic congestion around school buildings, presenting an unnecessary hazard to small students. The advice applies especially in inclement weather.

Drivers maneuvering to drop off young passengers create confusing traffic patterns in school areas, sometimes contributing to serious accidents. Children running haphazardly across traffic lanes to enter and leave the family car are exposed to great danger.

Instead of driving children to school, the auto club recommends that parents help them learn safe walking rules -- and on rainy days, provide them with well-fitting, light-colored raincoats and rain hats.

Plan to walk with children the first few days of school and meet them afterward. Get started in plenty of time, so there's no need to hurry or run. This way, they'll learn to walk safely.

If there's a school bus available, walk with children to the bus for a few days and meet them at the stop when they arrive home.

Before long, youngsters will probably want to walk to school or the bus "alone" -- this may mean with friends, but not an adult.

A child will be better equipped to go it alone by then, if the parent has mapped out the safest route. The youngster should be told why it is the best way, and why alternate routes are less desirable, even though possibly shorter.

To select the safest route, keep the following in mind: Wherever possible, choose controlled intersections for children to cross. Control may be by a mechanical traffic signal, a police officer, and adult crossing guard or a member of the School Safety Patrol.

At crossings with traffic signals, explain the meaning of the red - yellow - green sequence and teach children to start across only at the beginning of the appropriate signal. Teach them to watch carefully for turning cars and explain that the signal is an aid to safe crossing, but cannot be relied upon totally -- they should look in all directions before and during crossing.

In the same way children have learned to watch for the correct light, they should learn to watch for the "go" signal given by a traffic officer or adult crossing guard, and to say at the curb until the signal is given.

At the corners where crosswalks are protected by the School Safety Patrol, explain to children that the older youngster is a friend who is there to help them watch for a safe time to cross. The parent, too, should demonstrate respect by observing directions of the patrol member.

Some streets children cross may be unguarded. On such streets, teach them to look in all directions before stepping off the curb and to proceed only when there is a good break in traffic. Ask them to walk -- never run -- across the street. On two-way streets, they should check carefully to the left until reaching the center, and to the right as they complete the crossing.

Finally, point out that the walk to school is no time for play. Playing tag or other diverting games while walking can be hazardous.

Remember that children are imitative. A parent's own actions in traffic influence the child's development of traffic habits. If you walk safely, they will very likely do the same.

Church Plans Series On Religious Identity

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Andover will devote the first six services of its fall season to a presentation of the Unitarian Universalist religious identity. At the same time, the religious education program for children will focus on understanding the heritage and present meaning of the denomination as well.

On Sept. 12, the 10:30 a.m. service, conducted by Dr. Randolph W. Becker, minister to the congregation, will be entitled "Unitarian Universalism - No Fault Religion"; this exposition of the major themes of denominational development, should serve as an excellent introduction for those who have always wondered about Unitarian Universalism.

Sept. 19, the service will be entitled "Transylvanian Heretics and Other Unlikely Heros"; This will be a sometimes light-hearted, sometimes serious look at the Unitarian part of the denominational background. Dr. Becker will again lead the service.

Rev. Gayle Lehman Becker, of the First Universalist Church of Essex, will present a service on Sept. 26 entitled: "From Good Hope to Gloucester", which will be a similarly light-hearted but serious look at the Universalist tradition in the denomination.

Oct. 3, the emphasis shifts from history to the present as Dr. Becker presents a service entitled "Distinct and Different - That's Us!", which will explore a service entitled

Oct. 3, the emphasis shifts from history to the present as Dr. Becker presents a service entitled "Distinct and Different - That's Us!", which will explore a recent national survey that indicates that Unitarian Universalists have perhaps the most distinctive and unified religious value system of the major denominations in the United States.

Oct. 10, the tradition from which Unitarian Universalism grew, is considered in a service on the Christian elements within the movement.

On Oct. 17, the entire congregation will join with the church school in celebrating the Unitarian Universalist tradition. The church school will provide special exhibits and events, while the morning service will be provided by the play "If You Were Arrested For Being a Unitarian Universalist, Would There Be Enough Evidence To Convict You?" by Richard Gilbert. The play will be performed by the "Not-Ready-For-Papal-Audience Players."

All the services are at 10:30 a.m. at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Andover (serving Greater Lawrence), 244 Lowell Street, (Route 133) in Andover. The Church welcomes persons of all back-grounds and present situations to join them for this six part look at their religious option.

Yes, it does. Because the healing Principle taught and practiced by Christ Jesus can apply to anyone at any time. New proofs of its healing power occur every day. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it"

Why Religious Education?

Thoughtful parents know that many of the problems their children face cannot be answered by what is taught at school or learned at home. The church's responsibility is to create an environment where problems can be illuminated by the light of faith in a community of concern.

"Where will my child acquire the moral fiber to choose between compassion and self-interest?"

"How can we learn to defy the de-humanizing effects of technology?"

"How shall we match physical growth with inner strength and maturity to cope with drugs, sexual permissiveness, and material greed?"

"What equips men and women to form strong, constructive, and lasting relationships?"

"How can one make ready to conquer pain, frustration, or death?"

"What can I give my child that will enable him to face an uncertain world and to survive?"

Christ Church offers a professionally directed modern and comprehensive program of moral and religious training to children of the community from Pre-Kindergarten through High School. For information, call 475-0529, or send in the blank below.

north side of Brook is included in the proposed district, and it is likely that some of the homes, such as 7-9 Brook and 11-13 Brook, were originally built as one family dwellings.

On up the hill, 23 Central Street represents an earlier Georgian period (mid to late 18th Century). The mansion was built by Nathaniel Smith, a tanner "and a very good one," according to Hayes, who adds that Smith's account books now belong to the Historical Society. Smith became a landowner and dealer as well, and his success is reflected in the elaborate style of the building -- the corner trim, the pediments on both doorways, the unusual monitor roof.

When Smith's son Nathaniel lived in the house, it also contained the town's second post office. Still another interesting feature is the curved moulding on the garage, which survived the renovation from stables some years ago.

On down Central Street are other Georgian buildings and Hayes notes the evidence of several different "waves" of development. First came the farmers -- the street has six "first period" homes -- then commercial men such as Smith with their Georgian mansions. In the Victorian era of the 19th Century, Central Street became largely residential, more of a "commuter" neighborhood.

One of the most familiar homes on the walk is the Marland-Rose Cottage at the corner of Chestnut Street, originally built by a blacksmith named Abbot, but later occupied by merchant and lawyer John Kneeland. Kneeland once greeted Lafayette on the front steps and, according to legend, Chestnut Street is named for the proverbial Chestnut tree was once shaded the smithy shop. Earlier in this century, the cottage was a tea room, now it's a residence again.

The Episcopal Church was established in Andover in 1835, through the efforts of industrialist Abraham Marland. The original structure burned and was replaced in 1882 with the present Hartwell and Richardson designed the northwest corner of Central and School Streets. In fact, the Church is considered one of the finest examples of Roman Catholic churches in New England.

Hayes says the view from the island across the street, and calls attention to the mixing of the old and the modern education. Hayes says historic districts would allow the mixing of the old and the modern, providing the contemporary in this case, takes the seat. The tans and the main structure, in fact, were carried over the addition by stone, without the expense of stone.

The Killoran Apartments at 36 Central are on the site of the original parsonage for the Church, itself on the southeast corner of that major intersection.

The first South Andover meeting house evolved from a dispute over land. A new Andover meeting house (the first is at North and Center). The issue was when the General Court divided the town into two parts, North (now North Andover) and South (now Andover). The meeting house was built for the people of South Andover, and was the center of the community and indeed it was at the intersection of roads.

Richardson design on the northwest corner of Central and School Streets. In fact, Christ Church is considered one of the finest examples of Romanesque churches in New England.

Hayes says the view of Christ Church is particularly good from the island across the street, and calls attention to the mixing of the old with the modern education wing. He says historic district status would allow the mixing of contemporary with the old providing the contemporary, as in this case, takes the back seat. The tans and browns of the main structure, for instance, were carried over into the addition by stucco and wood, without the expense of stone.

The Killoran Apartments at 36 Central are on the site of the original parsonage for South Church, itself on the southwest corner of that major intersection.

The first South Parish meeting house evolved in 1709 from a dispute over location of a new Andover meeting house (the first is at North Andover Center). The issue was settled when the General Court divided the town into two parishes - North (now North Andover) and South (now Andover). The meeting house was built in what the people of South Parish felt was the center of their community and indeed it was, at the intersection of roads leading to Boston, Haverhill and Salem.

The present South Church was designed by John Stevens of Boston in the Norman Romanesque style, and built in 1861.

The Georgian residence at 47 Central was built by Samuel Abbot, an importer who was chased out of Boston by the British, and it still has its original Indian shutters. The latticework on the roof was probably added during the Victorian era, Hayes says, but adds that it enhances rather than detracts as so many afterthoughts do. This Abbot was also a founder of the Andover Theological Seminary.

Down the street at 56 Central is the Georgian George Abbot House, built in 1796. It was here, according to legend, that Timothy Abbot was kidnapped by the Indians, then later returned by a squaw. One of his brothers was scalped in the back field at the same time.

The first period (before 1730) homes at 57 and 59 Central Street were connected until 1927, when Mary Byers Smith separated the two. Number 59 subsequently appeared in House Beautiful with its "modern" kitchen and barn which had been transformed into living quarters.

Some say 57 is the older of the two, but Hayes says the only way to settle the argument would be to tear off the walls and look at the beams.

The large upper window at 59 Central is unusual in the style,

John McKean. Not the machine.

Under the present County government, our 34 cities and towns in Essex County face an astronomical increase of 37% in the County tax assessment. That's $17.1 million of our money they're wasting. It's time to say, "No" to the machine and "Yes" to John McKean.

He has the ability and integrity. He has solid ideas to halt our skyrocketing County tax assessment, to reduce Essex County's chronically high unemployment, to combat our rapidly increasing crime problem. He can make County government work for you.

Vote John McKean.

H-P Reports Increase In Sales

Hewlett-Packard Company today reported a 13 percent increase in sales and a 9 percent decrease in earnings for the third quarter of the company's fiscal year, compared to the same period a year ago.

Sales for the third quarter ended July 31 totaled $277,477,000, compared with $245,880,000, for the corresponding quarter of fiscal 1975. Net earnings amounted to $18,472,000, equal to 65 cents per share on 27,899,098 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with earnings of $20,286,000, equal to 73 cents per share on 27,565,278 shares during last year's third quarter.

William R. Hewlett, HP President, said the Company's incoming orders for the quarter amounted to $291,092,000, a gain of 11 percent over orders of $261,938,000 booked in the corresponding period of 1975. For the nine month period, orders totaled $841,830,000, up 12 percent from a year ago when orders were $753,248,000.

"Third quarter results have been disappointing," Hewlett said. "Our domestic business exhibited continued strength, but not enough to offset weakness in our international orders, which were substantially below target."

Domestic orders for the third quarter totaled $155,350,000, up 18 percent from orders of $131,698,000 during the same period last year. In contrast, international orders increased only 4 percent, to $135,742,000 from $130,240,000.

"In addition to delays in introducing new pocket calculator models, severe price erosion in this product line, felt earlier in the United States, occurred in international markets," Hewlett said. "This led to a significant decline in profitability of our Singapore operation, which in turn necessitated an increase in our overall projected tax rate. For the third quarter as a whole, the pocket calculator business operated at a loss."

"It appears that achieving last year's level of income will be extremely difficult unless we experience substantial improvement in international markets during the fourth quarter."

For the nine months, domestic orders totaled $428,080,000, up 15 percent from $371,710,000 a year ago. International orders for the period were $413,750,000, up 8 percent from $381,538,000.

Total sales for the nine months amounted to $792,880,000, a 12 percent increase over sales of $706,256,000 for the corresponding period last year. Net earnings declined 9 percent to $57,319,000, equal to $2.05 per share. This compares with earnings of $62,651,000, equal to $2.27 a share, during the first nine months last year.

Beach grass, Ammophila breviligulata, has six-foot roots which make it a good sand binder. The sturdy and leathery leaves continue to grow after covered by sand, but they are fragile and if a shoot is broken by foot traffic it dies and cannot regenerate, Massachusetts Audubon points out.

Mushroom Walk At Center

A special family walk to look for mushrooms and other interesting kinds of fungi is being planned for Sunday Sept. 26, at Massachusetts Audubon Society's Ipswich River Nature Center on Cherry St. in Wenham. The Nature Center will be open at 1:30 and the walk will begin at 2. Specimens found will be examined and discussed but no collecting will be permitted on sanctuary grounds.

The walk is limited to 30 people and prior reservations are necessary. There is a small fee per family group. For further information about this and other family activities at the Audubon Sanctuary please call the office at 887-2241 Monday through Friday.

Genetics Pioneer

Austrian Monk Gregor Mendel pioneered in genetics in 1857 by cross-breeding garden peas and recording their inherited traits. His findings, unnoticed until 1900, set off worldwide research that led to development of hybrid plants.

another old Abbot family home at 72 Central.

This area of the street also shows the 19th century Victorian development, beginning with 64 Central which Hayes calls a "pleasant, modest Victorian" featuring a mansard roof.

The Victorian at 65 Central was the Smith-Purdon mansion, built in 1874 and reflecting the wealth of the Smith & Dove Mills family. The unusual "eyebrow" treatment of the windows of the Early Victorian at 67 Central, and the Shingle Style features of the Belknap house at 71 Central are also worth a close look, according to Hayes.

It was in the woods behind 71 Central where, according to legend, Daniel Webster gave a rousing speech to reunite himself with the Whig party. The area is a natural amphitheater (now owned by AVIS), Andover was a whig stronghold, and thousands came to hear the famous orator.

The Poor-Perry house across Phillips Street at 68, once the home of Admiral Perry, is a familiar landmark in the Georgian style. Note especially the different shapes on the dormer roofs.

Hayes pauses at 81 Central to again tout the unique combination of features and styles that exist only along Central Street. This Early Victorian house has unique trapezoidal windows which are largely hidden by the trees to car traffic. Nearby at 85 Central, Hayes points out another "old-timer," so identified by its narrow clapboards.

Hidden behind a fence at the curve, but recognized by the millstone at the drive, 88 Central Street is one of the first period houses on the route. A former resident claims that Central Street traffic was actually "much worse" in the early years of this century, when Ballardvale was a bustling industrial center.

On the north side of the street now are several 20th century homes typical, Hayes says, of suburban development of the 1950's. He says the study commission has received some criticism for including 20th century structures, but says they feel that all periods of architecture should be included. In 100 years, he says, people may be oohing and ahing over the features of these.

The proposed historic district crosses over the Shawshen River and under the Horn Bridge, then up Andover Street to the familiar Benjamin Abbot homestead, with its new, but old-fashioned herb garden.

The final stop on the walk is the early period house at the corner of Argilla Road, and across the street, picnic tables for the weary who have just walked through nearly 250 years of Andover history.

Harvest Weekend Set For Drumlin Farm

Fall comes but once a year, and with it Lincoln's Drumlin Farm puts on its colors with their gala harvest weekend. Harvest weekend, October 2nd and 3rd, is a celebration and interpretive program of and about this season.

Activities for young and not so young include demonstrations of colonial farm arts and trades such as milking, buttermaking, the use of draft horses with farm equipment, and harness repair. The toll and knell of the blacksmith's hammer calls you on, maybe past the broom maker and chair caner. Enjoy a glass of fresh cider while relaxing and listening to the sweet strains of a folk tune softly meted out on a dulcimer, rhythmically backed by the weaver's shuttle.

For aspiring gardeners there will be demonstrations of the many kitchen arts; canning, baking, drying. If you own a woodlot (or would like to), join the activities in ours and learn some new skills about trimming, pruning, and tool use.

Break for a fine lunch behind the nature center and then enjoy a leisurely hayride and an admiring walk about the farm, visiting some of our craftsmen's tables and demonstrations. In the later afternoon mosey on down to the barn for the scarecrow judging. Root for your favorite, or did you remember to bring your own?

Lecture On Sea Captain At Institute

The Essex Institute, 132 Essex St., Salem, announces a lecture on Captain Samuel Tucker of Marblehead, Wednesday, Sept. 15 at 8 p.m.

Philip C.F. Smith, curator of maritime history at the Peabody Museum of Salem, will deliver an illustrated presentation treating the life and career of Captain Samuel Tucker (1747-1883), a member of the Continental Navy. The subject has fascinated Smith since the late 1950's when he was an undergraduate at Harvard. The occasion of the lecture will mark the publication by the Institute in book form of Smith's illustrated biography of Captain Tucker, with a foreword by Robert G. Albion, noted maritime historian. This work previously appeared as the July number of the Essex Institute Historical Collections. Copies of the book will be available for sale in late September or October.

A member of the board of editors of the Historical Collections and the managing editor of The American Neptune, Mr. Smith has published numerous books, articles, and book reviews in the field of American maritime history.

The chambered nautilus, a mollusk, lives in the ocean between Fiji and the Philippines, existing at depths to 2,000 feet. As it grows it moves forward in the expanding shell while secretions form a partition behind its body every few weeks, creating one of the more perfect spirals in nature, Massachusetts Audubon notes. A thin tube, linking all the chambers to the body may control the nautilus' buoyancy by regulating the ratio of gas to liquid.

Inspection Stations Are Inspected

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Robert A. Panora said this week that in preparation for the Fall inspection of motor vehicles and trailers which begins Sept. 1, 46 Registry officers are in the process of checking the state's 4082 official inspection stations.

Coming under scrutiny of the Registry officers are the required inspection equipment, physical facilities of the stations, training of the station adjusters, and check of security measures.

Panora said that approximately 3,208,000 motor vehicles and trailers will have to be inspected at these stations between Sept. 1 and Oct. 15, the official compulsory Fall inspection period here.

During 1975, more than 100 inspection stations were suspended by the Registry for failure to meet requirements or to conduct proper inspections.

Early inspections are urged. Thousands of citations were issued to owners and operators following the Spring 1976 inspection by law enforcement officers for failure to display the current inspection stickers.

Transoceanic radiotelephone service between New York and London was provided on a 24-hour basis for the first time on June 27, 1929.

Galbiati Named To College Post

Dr. Louis J. Galbiati

Dr. Louis J. Galbiati, 9 Marie Drive, Andover, has been appointed to the position of director of engineering technology at the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.

A former chairman of the Andover school committee, Dr.

Galbiati will be responsible for organization and staffing the new school of technology which will emphasize an interdisciplinary approach with multiple options in each of the fields of electrical, civil, mechanical, communications, mini-computers and architecture.

His appointment in Little Rock is effective Oct. 1.

For the past two years, he has been dean of instruction at the Hartford State Technical College in Connecticut. He was chairman of the electrical engineering department at Merrimack College and had been in the faculty at Cornell University.

Dr. Galbiati also has been with RCA, where he was responsible for system design on multi-computer weapon systems and for the application of computers in training simulations.

He served for three years on the Andover school committee.

for renomination, which is tantamount to election to the senate seat.

Precincts five and six are served by State Sen. William Saltonstall.

Concern over county government has produced some vigorous campaigning for County Commissioner posts this year.

In the Democratic ballot, Incumbent Commissioners Daniel J. Burke of Lynnfield and Mrs. Katherine Donovan of Lawrence are being challenged by John McKean of Beverly, a Harvard school government graduate and North Andover Selectman Joseph Guthrie.

Seeking nomination on the Republican ballot for county commission are Michael L. Madden of Beverly, Lawrence J. Kennedy of Danvers, Kevin J. Leach of Manchester and George A. McCarriker, Jr., of Saugus.

Also at the county level, six candidates are seeking nomination on the Democrat ballot to the position of clerk of courts, where incumbent Philip Hennessey is retiring at the end of the term.

County Commissioner Edward Cahill is seeking election to this post, along with Atty. George Arvanitis of Lawrence, William P. Casey of Lynn, Thomas F. Dunn of North Andover, James D. Leary of Peabody and Stephen N. Zanni of Lawrence.

While casting ballots in the primary results in enrollment in the party for which the ballot is obtained, voters may return to another status or be independent or unenrolled immediately after casting a ballot.

The voter may obtain a party enrollment change card at the polls and either mail it or present it in person at the town clerk's office.

Based on past experience with primary elections, and despite some interest in the county and state senate contests, voter turnout on Tuesday could be light.

In 1972 and '74 the balloting was not heavy, two years ago the turnout still being light in spite of a contest for the Democratic nomination for state representative.

Polling places are: Precinct one, Free Christian church; Precinct two, Andover Baptist church, Central street; Precinct three, Cardinal Cushing gymnasium, Haverhill street; Precinct four, West elementary school, motor vehicle entrance from High Plain road for the safety of school children; Precinct five, Ballard Vale United church and Precinct six, Peabody House, Phillips Academy.

Retired Persons Meet Monday

The Greater Lowell AARP Chapter 730 of the American Association of Retired Persons will hold their meeting Monday, Sept. 13, at the Smithe Baker Community Center, at 1:30 p.m.

Bicentennial slides will be shown by Beverley Sinatra, a Kiwi (a retired airline hostess).

A business meeting will be held and refreshments served.

planning and cost of any new location of postal facilities.

For over a year, the post office department has been considering a new building, primarily a processing facility for Andover.

Initially, the department had an option on land owned by Sidney P. White on Andover street diagonally across from American Power Devices company.

Following considerable opposition by local boards and committees as well as citizen groups, the post office withdrew its opposition.

At the time the post office asked the town to provide them with alternate sites.

Selectmen and town manager presented four sites, two on Park street, one in the Shawsheen Plaza and another suggested expansion of the present site.

All were rejected as being either unworkable for plans of the post office, or the property was not available for sale.

During the summer months, the post office announced plans to locate its new facility on Dale street land abutting the small industrial park in Ballardvale.

When opposition was presented to this location, a Stevens street site was placed into consideration, this along the site of the old railroad bed.

Selectmen have now rejected this location.

Among prime considerations of any new site, was the retention of full customer service in a downtown location. This the

Test Results For Children

Buoyed by a distinct trend in achievement scores, the Andover Committee Tuesday endorsed a new goal: scores of all achievement tests top the 70th percentile by the spring.

The committee expressed general pleasure over results of both external and internal tests — the achievements — the spring, and the internal tests which were given to a sample of pupils in the third, sixth and ninth grades.

Two years ago the committee responded to declining scores on a national trend as well as a local goal: calling for increased emphasis on the basic subjects and scores to be above the 70th percentile in 1976.

Ninety-nine percent of the tests taken in May reached the goal.

In fact, Associate Superintendent Harry Westcott said 93 percent of the scores
